CORRESPONDENCE, 1863-1999

Arrangement: Chronological

Scope and Content

This collection primarily consists of transcriptions of letters written by William J. Wooden to his family members during his incarceration in St. Joseph, St. Louis (Gratiot Street Prison) and Alton, Illinois (Alton Prison) during the Civil War. The transcriptions were made by the donor and he retained the original records. The letters relate how Wooden is feeling and what he is curious about back home (family and neighbors). They do describe a little bit about the conditions in the prisons, but only to the extent of stating he is comfortable or eating well.
